

English Pronunciation, Autumn 2009

Instructor: Charles Zhengwei Chen (陳徵蔚)

Textbook: Well Said Intro: Pronunciation for Clear Communication.

Office: CB108 (Tuesday 7, 8; Wednesday 7; Friday 7, 8, 9)

E-mail: bluemoon@cyu.edu.tw

Homepage: <http://www.wei1105.idv.tw>

The practice of English pronunciation should not be divorced from the everyday conversation. This course, therefore, will emphasize not only the clear pronunciation but also the practical methods of oral communication. As for the pronunciation, students are required to carefully study the constitution of words and its relationship with the well pronounced sounds. Moreover, they have to study the stress, rhythm and intonation in the sentences to make their verbal expression more communicable. In addition to the teacher's lectures, the class will also be divided into ten groups, each of which may have 6-7 members. Every member should actively participate in the discussion and help each other adjust his/her pronunciation in and after class.

Evaluation Standard

Attendance and Punctuality	15%
Class Participation	20%
Midterm Exam (Oral and Written)	30%
Final Exam (Oral and Written)	35%

Month	Date	Course Contents	Page
Sep	11	Course Orientation
	18	Introduction to Basic Pronunciation Principles
	25	Introduction to Basic Pronunciation Principles
Oct	02	Chapter 1 You Pronunciation Needs	Page 1-6
	09	Chapter 2 Setting Goals	Page 7-10
	16	Chapter 3 Syllables and Dictionary Basics	Page 11-20

	23	Chapter 4 Final Consonant Sounds and Linking	Page 31-42
	30	Chapter 5 Syllables and –s Endings	Page 43-52
Nov	06	☆ Midterm Examination
	13	Chapter 6 Syllables and ed Endings	Page 53-66
	20	Chapter 7 Stressed Syllables—Numbers, Nouns and Verbs	Page 67-78
	27	Chapter 8 Stressed Syllables--Suffixes	Page 79-88
Dec	04	Chapter 9 Basic Rhythm—Stressed Words	Page 89-98
	11	Chapter 10 Basic Rhythm—Reduced Words	Page 99-112
	18	Chapter 11 Focus Words	Page 113-122
	25	Christmas Day
		Chapter 12 Intonation: Rising and Falling	Page 123-132
Jan	01	Chapter 13 Thought Groups and Pausing	Page 133-146
	08	Final Examination	